3. Ucapan Presiden ASASI

Sdr. Presiden ASASI memulakan ucapannya dengan menyentuh tentang pengislaman ilmu yang dewasa ini ASASI tidak lagi sekadar melakukan penyelidikan dalam sains Islam, tetapi turut menggali khazanah ilmu pra-Islam, khususnya di Alam Melayu. Usaha yang dibawa ASASI ini juga mahu membuktikan bahawa anggapan selama ini bahawa Alam Melayu pada zaman pra-Islamnya tiada sumbangan asli dalam perkembangan ilmu adalah tidak benar.

Memang, tegas Presiden ASASI, Islam pertama kali datang ke Alam Melayu sejauh yang direkodkan pada abad ke-13 M, seperti juga menurut Syed Muhammad Naquib al-Attas. Namun, penemuan demi penemuan terbaru menunjukkan adanya himpunan ilmu pada zaman pra-Islam di Alam Melayu ini. Ini sekaligus mendorong agar kajian etnosains dan etnomatematik di Alam Melayu ini dilakukan untuk mengenalpasti dan mengangkat lagi kandungan ilmu sendiri.

Di sini sdr. Presiden memberi contoh usaha yang dilakukan oleh Sdr. Dr. Shaharir Mohamad Zain, yang menemukan perkataan dan unsur yang bernama akasa atau nama lainnya yang dikenali sebagai athir (Arab) atau aether (Yunani). Penemuan unsur ini, selain unsur asas yang lain menunjukkan bahawa kandungan ilmu di Alam Melayu tidak kalah bandingnya dengan peradaban lain. Di samping itu, Presiden ASASI sekali lagi mengulang asas penubuhan ASASI itu sendiri, iaitu langkah untuk mengangkat sains Islam ke tingkat yang lebih membanggakan. Padanya, memang di mata masyarakat awam sains itu sering dianggap sebagai sebuah kebenaran. Walhal, masyarakat awam kerap terlupa bahawa teori sains itu sering-sering silih berganti. Maka dari situlah sains yang dicungkil dari khazanah sendiri dapat memberi nilai tambah pada sains yang sedia ada. Mungkin pula dapat menandingi sains yang sedia ada ini. Kerana itu, amat penting untuk masyarakat menyedari bahawa sains itu turut bersifat nisbi, subjektif dan bukannya objektif mutlak.

Begitu juga, Presiden ASASI mengingatkan bahawa dengan kepantas teknologi mutakhir ini, maka seharusnya itu membantu usaha ASASI menyebar kegiatan pengislaman ilmu serta pemperibumian ilmu. Sebab itu, kalau bangsa Melayu mahu mempunyai jatidiri, maka hal yang pertama mestilah mengenal sejarah diri. Oleh itu, ujar Presiden ASASI, dari sinilah bangsa Melayu dapat menentukan wawasannya yang jitu.

Bertitik tolak dari kesedaran inilah, maka ASASI tekal dengan pendirian bahawa untuk membangun sebuah bangsa itu, itu mestilah dengan menggunakan bahasa sendiri. Lantaran itu, ASASI terlibat langsung dalam usaha membantah PPSMI yang dilaksanakan dalam sistem pendidikan negara. Jadi, jelas bahawa ASASI bukan sekadar sebuah pertubuhan intelektual, tetapi juga sebuah pertubuhan yang memahami nurani pengetahuan, serta menjadi sebuah tanggungjawab sosialnya.

Selain dari menggali khazanah sendiri, mengkritik sains sedia ada, serta meperjuangkan bahasa Melayu, ASASI turut menekankan kegiatan penterjemahan. Menurut Presiden ASASI, sekiranya setiap ahli akademik cergas melakukan kegiatan penterjemahan ini, maka usaha pemindahan pengetahuan akan menjadi lebih mudah. Namun, malangnya, ini tidak berlaku seperti yang diharapkan.

Akhir sekali, Presiden menyeru agar ahli-ahli ASASI memainkan peranan yang lebih bermakna lagi serta membangun barisan pelapis supaya wujudnya kesinambungan dalam merealisasikan hasrat besar ASASI ini.

1. Pengesahan Agenda Muktamar ASASI ke-32

Pencadang : Dr. Assanah Mohd Mydin
Penyokong : Mohd. Rohaizat Abdul Wahab

2. Pelantikan Pengerusi dan Pencatat Minit Muktamar ASASI ke-32

- 2.1 Mesyuarat sebulat suara bersetuju agar Prof. Wan Ramli Wan Daud mempengerusikan Muktamar ASASI ke-32.
- 2.2 Mesyuarat dimaklumkan bahawa pada muktamar ini akan ada pemilihan jawatankuasa.
- 2.3 Saudara Mohammad Alinor Abdul Kadir mencadangkan dan Saudara Yunus Sharum dan Saudara Mohd. Rohaizat Abdul Wahab sebagai Pencatat Minit Muktamar.

3. Ucapan Presiden ASASI

Saudara Presiden ASASI memulakan ucapan dengan mengalun-alukan kehadiran semua ahli ASASI dan selamat datang kepada ahli muda. Penggerusi memaklumkan bahawa terdapat sedikit masalah untuk mengumpulkan semua ahli lama. Hasil daripada penganjuran beberapa program, ASASI menerima keahlian ahli muda dan bakal ahli. Kehadiran ahli muda ini sedikit sebanyak akan menyemarakkan lagi agenda ASASI iaitu pengislaman ilmu.

Saudara Presiden ASASI memaklumkan bahawa beliau baru sahaja pulang dari Isfahan, Iran. Bandar Isfahan merupakan bandar terawal yang menyambut kedatangan Islam di Iran. 400 tahun dahulu kerajaan Safawi telah menerajui kepimpinan dan ajaran Syiah menjadi agama yang dianuti oleh penduduk di Isfahan. Syah Abas menjadi ketua pemimpin pada masa tersebut dan mazhab Syiah berkembang kecuali di kawasan barat daya Iran.

Hasil daripada kunjungan beliau, didapati bahasa Parsi merupakan bahasa penghantar dari sekolah hingga ke universiti. Beliau juga sempat melawat ke universiti yang terkemuka di Iran, walaupun diajarnya dalam bahasa Parsi tetapi pelajarnya dapat menguasai ilmu dan melahirkan pelajar yang hebat. ASASI sebagai pertubuhan yang memperjuangkan untuk memartabatkan bahasa Melayu di Malaysia cuba merealisasikan perkara tersebut di Negara kita.

Di Malaysia masih ada lagi kumpulan yang memperjuangkan pendidikan dalam bahasa Inggeris. Bahasa mencerminkan budaya, lambat laun kita akan memisahkan budaya dan agama hingga terikut dengan idealism sekular. Dahulunya Institut Islam Hadhari telah menyatakan hasrat untuk bekerjasama dengan ASASI. ASASI kurang bersetuju disebabkan banyak makna lain yang kurang difahami oleh masyarakat kita. ASASI kurang bekerjasama tetapi tidak menolak apa yang telah dilakukan oleh sahabat-sahabat kita yang lain.

Saudara Presiden berharap pada masa hadapan ASASI dapat menarik lebih ramai penyelidik menyertai ASASI. Kita juga berasa bertuah kerana Prof. Shaharir merupakan ahli yang terawal dalam ASASI dan kini masih lagi bersama ASASI. Kehadiran ahli muda dalam ASASI juga merupakan satu fenomena yang baik dan menunjukkan masih ada lagi anak muda meminati perjuangan ASASI ini. ASASI juga kini telah mencecah 34 tahun akan terus memperjuangkan pengislaman ilmu dan berharap usaha ini akan teruskan lagi oleh pewaris kita pada masa akan datang.

Memang banyak sekali! Umpamanya ada 24 buah jurnal/majalah ilmiah di Universitas Muhammadiyah, Surakarta (<http://lppm.ums.ac.id/index.php/jurnal-ilmiah>) tetapi kebanyakannya tiada makalah keIslamam dan/atau tiada kekinian penerbitannya. Namun tiada sebuah pun majalah ilmiah keislaman di dalam SAKTI (sains, kejuruteraan, kesihatan, dan teknologi)

Berikut ialah jurnal/majalah ilmiah di Indonesia yang ada laman sesawangnya.

Index Islamicus – sejak 1906

This review journal appears four times a year, with bibliographic entries on all aspects of Islamic civilization. There is a special section on Science (in the medieval Islamic world).

The Index Islamicus database indexes literature on Islam, the Middle East and the Muslim world. It is produced by an editorial team working at the School of Oriental and African Studies in London, established to transmit knowledge about Islamic and Middle East studies, which have traditionally been part of the curriculum of SOAS. Records included in the database cover almost 100 years of publications on the world of Islam.

Material cited in the Index Islamicus includes not only work written about the Middle East, but also about the other main Muslim areas of Asia and Africa, plus Muslim minorities elsewhere. Over 3,000 journals are monitored for inclusion in the database, together with conference proceedings, monographs, multi-authored works and book reviews. Journals and books are indexed down to the article and chapter level.

Major areas of coverage include: Accounting, Archaeology, Arts Bibliography & Scholarship, Economics, Education, Middle East, Geography, History, Islam, Law, Literature, Natural & Applied Sciences, Philosophy, Politics, Religion, Social Sciences, Theology, Travel, Zoology.

Copyright owner of the Index Islamicus is Brill Academic Publishers, Leiden, The Netherlands.

The crisis that unfolded after Iran's June 2009 presidential election exposed the absolutist nature of the state's highest religious authority (wali-ye faqih), Ayatullah 'Ali Khamenei. It also revealed the urgent need to critically interrogate Ayatullah Khomeini's doctrinal justifications for the governance of the jurist (wilayat al-faqih) in light of how 'Ali ibn Abi Talib, the first Shi'i Imam, assumed the caliphate: divine bestowal (nass) combined with public investiture that took the form of bay'a (oath of allegiance). Ayatullahs Husayn 'Ali Montazeri, Mohsen Kadivar, Yousef Saanei, Bayat Zanjani and Mehdi Karroubi have attempted to devise a model in which sovereignty belongs to the public and limits the clergy's role in daily matters of the state to oversight and guidance. In contrast, Ayatullahs Kazemeyni Boroujerdi and Mojtaba Shabestari argue for a clear-cut separation between the church and the state so that the public can choose its form of government since no specific form is prescribed in Islam. On the other hand, Ayatullah Mesbah Yazdi, a member of the Assembly of Experts, has consistently been a passionate advocate of the absolute authority of the jurist in its most comprehensive form and a vehement opponent of any dissenting discourse on this subject

Selected Historical Facets of the Presence of Shi'ism in Southeast Asia, Christoph Marcinkowski, pp. 381-416

This article is intended to highlight selected episodes of the historical and cultural presence of Shi'ism in the Southeast Asian region. It should be emphasized that this presence, however, is not a result of post-1979 events in Iran, but has rather been deeply entrenched for centuries in the historical course of Southeast Asian Islam, especially in Islamic mysticism (Sufism). The enigmatic 16th-century Sufi Hamzah Fansür?, for instance, a major figure of Malay-Indonesian Sufism and literary heritage and still one of those Muslim writers dearest to Malay-reading Muslims today, appears to have displayed certain Shi'ite tendencies in his writings, as well as in the story of his life. In this particular context, reference shall be made to Persian cultural influences in the Southeast Asian region, Thailand, in particular. As will be shown, these influences are in no way marginal, as the Bunnag family, descendants from 17th-century Persian Muslim immigrants to the Siamese Ayutthaya kingdom, continues to play a significant role in contemporary Thai politics and society. In the understanding of this author, pre-19th-century Southeast Asian (especially Malay-Indonesian) Islam had been rather mystically inclined, displaying Shi'ite and Sufi elements, although maintaining outwardly an "orthodox" Sunnite coloring. As will be pointed out, in spite of certain indications for the increase of somewhat more scripture-based tendencies from the 17th century onward, it rather was one of the paradoxical results of Dutch and British colonialism in the region that Southeast Asian Islam took a different, more legalistic, course since the early 1800s. Improved means of communication, for instance, with and travel to the Sunnite centers of learning in the Middle East (in particular, Egypt and Arabia) accelerated the already ongoing purge of Malay Muslim literature of its more heterodox elements. This purge should perhaps not be termed a "renewal" or "revival" but rather an "intellectual retrogression." One of its side-effects today is the increase of radical and, at times, extremist tendencies among certain sectors of Southeast Asian Islam. Thus, it should be re-emphasized here that in order to avoid out-of-context dealing with and evaluating of contemporary issues (such as the current (re-)emergence of Shi'ism among parts of the Southeast Asian Muslim community), we must also be constantly aware of the historical and cultural particularities of Islamic civilization in this part of the world.

Rereading Zaynab Al-Ghazālī's Representations of Muslim Women and Islamic Feminism in the 21st Century, Uthman I.O.

This paper focuses on the activism and feminism of the Egyptian Zaynab al-Ghazālī al-Jubaylī (1918—2009) in order to examine what she thought about Muslim women's roles in both the political and Islamic struggles of the Muslim Brotherhood in Egypt. Existing literature, whilst attesting to Zaynab al-Ghazālī's eminent position in both contemporary Islamic circles and feminist discourses, fails to show how her feminist activities connected with the Muslim Brotherhood. By contrast with the secular feminist postulations of Muslim women like Ahmed Leila, Assia Djebbar and Nawal Sa'dawi, this paper examines how Zaynab's feminist activism and the organisation of the Muslim Brotherhood connect in their da'wah approaches and contributions to the revivalism of 'authentic' Islamic feminism in contemporary society. This paper is based upon Zaynab's autobiographical work, Ayyām min Hayātī to show how Zaynab and her associates, using the Muslim Brotherhood's struggles, were able to employ the Islamic female agency even under the unfavourable brutal regime of the then Egyptian President, Jamal 'Abd an-Nasir (1956—1970).

Mechanisms of Poverty Eradication: An Islamic Perspective, Ahmad Faisiy Ogunbado

Poverty is a global phenomenon. People living in abject poverty exist all over the world. UNICEF claims that almost 22,000 children die each day owing to poverty. They die quietly in most of the poorest villages on earth, but the degree of this phenomenon differs considerably from one country to another and from one region to another.

Nonetheless, the most affected continents are Africa, Asia and Latin America. It is pathetic to recognise that the heart of the Muslim nation is situated in the first two of those continents. Furthermore, poverty or hunger is exclusively man-made; a direct consequence of unjust economic systems that give birth to other evils if care is not taken. This paper looks into mechanisms that Islam has put in place to eradicate this globally manufactured phenomenon. It endeavours to do so through looking into the definition of poverty and causes of poverty in addition to the basic needs of human beings and how poverty is to be eradicated from both the Qur'anic and Sunnah points of view. The study is library-oriented research, which involves acquisition of data and materials from books, papers, on-line journals and magazines.

This article examines the current state of Islamic law within a community of Muslims in the United States as it relates to Shari'a-compliant financial products. After briefly reviewing the history of Islamic finance and Islamic authority structures within the United States, I rely on interviews with multiple parties involved in the establishment of one of the first Islamic credit unions in the United States to explore the development of Islamic law within American regulation and cultural mores. I examine the authority structure present among Muslims in the Puget Sound area, and I examine the qualities that define a credible religious scholar. Fundamentally, this article contributes to the analysis of legal authority among Muslims in the United States.

How Should Creationism and Intelligent Design be Dealt with in the Classroom? MICHAEL J. REISS

Until recently, little attention has been paid in the school classroom to creationism and almost none to intelligent design. However, creationism and possibly intelligent design appear to be on the increase and there are indications that there are more countries in which schools are becoming battle-grounds over them. I begin by examining whether creationism and intelligent design are controversial issues, drawing on Robert Dearden's epistemic criterion of the controversial and more recent responses to and defences of this. I then examine whether the notion of 'worldviews' in the context of creationism is a useful one by considering the film March of the Penguins. I conclude that the 'worldviews' perspective on creationism is useful for two reasons: first it indicates the difficulty of using the criterion of reason to decide whether an issue is controversial or not; secondly, it suggests that standard ways of addressing the diversity of student views in a science classroom may be inadequate. I close by examining the implications of this view for teaching in science lessons and elsewhere, for example in religious education lessons and citizenship lessons and at primary level where subject divisions cannot be made in so clear-cut a manner

Why Theology Can and Should be Taught at Secular Universities: Lonergan on Intellectual Conversion.

PATRICK GIDDY

Abstract: Drawing on Bernard Lonergan's Method in Theology (1972) I argue that theology can be taught because personal knowledge, of which it is an instance, is at the heart of academic inquiry; and it should be taught because critical engagement with basic ways of taking one's life as a whole (religion in a broad sense) furnishes a critique of the typical oversights of contemporary culture. The appropriation of one's subjectivity entails an awareness of an existential dialectic that pushes towards a decisive option for affirming the possibility and worth of growth in one's powers of self-determination and self-transcendence. Thus conversion—precisely defined in terms of this dialectic—has moral and intellectual dimensions whose promotion goes to the heart of the academic enterprise. By separating out those disciplines (systematics, for example) which are mediated by the existential stance taken by the scholar, Lonergan allows theology to be seen as one world view among others.

Musacchio J.M. Contradictions: Neuroscience and Religion. Springer Praxis Books

“Contradictions” is a general interest book that exposes the incompatibility between popular religious beliefs and the scientific view of human nature. It begins with a survey of the evolution of religions and their continuing, often irrational, influences in modern society. Then, based on his long experience in neuroscience, the author takes issue with Descartes about the duality of body and soul. He presents case studies of patients with brain diseases and from these deduces that the soul, far from being separate and supernatural, is no more or less than our way of experiencing our brains ... and which correspondingly disintegrates when they do. Convincing clinical findings and powerful arguments about the universality of truth make this book a bold contribution to the debate about belief and religion in the modern world.

"The author describes how complex networks of neural connections produce all human experiences, from simple motor movements to one's encounters with a transcendent reality. The strength of the author's arguments resides in an engaging series of case studies that help readers connect neurophysiological principles to how individuals 'experience' their brains. ... the book is a valuable addition to the science and religion debate. Summing Up: Recommended. Lower-division undergraduates through researchers/faculty." (J. A. Hewlett, Choice, Vol. 50 (7), March, 2013)

Pillow W. Spirituality Beyond Science and Religion. iUniverse

Spirituality means something different to everyone. Some may believe it involves participating in organized religion. Others may prefer it to be more personal, like getting in touch with one's inner self through yoga, meditation, quiet reflection, or even long walks. A few may find that it lies in finding a new sense of purpose for their lives. Spirituality Beyond Science and Religion addresses all of these, and more, through a new paradigm about life and death. It lifts readers above their daily press for competitive survival and success, by going to the heart of all spirituality. The book disputes traditional science's claim that physical matter is the only reality. It also helps explain enigmas that have confronted orthodox religion for centuries. To do so, this book correlates published research from nearly one hundred and fifty authors and professionals in medicine, neuroscience, psychology, theology, history, and metaphysics. It explores new insights being revealed through thousands of subjective experiences around the world--all of them beyond the ability of science or religion to explain. The book therefore not only offers reassurance that death is not final but it also discloses profound implications for how we live our lives on earth.

This book presents a celebration, survey and critique of the theological work of arguably the most important and most widely-read contributor to the modern dialogue between science and theology: John Polkinghorne. Including a major survey by Polkinghorne himself of his life's work in theology, this book draws together contributors from among the most important voices in the science-theology dialogue today to focus on key aspects of Polkinghorne's work, with Polkinghorne providing responses. Anybody exploring contemporary aspects of the science-religion debate will find this book invaluable.

Ash M. & Surman J. (Pnyut.).The Nationalization of Scientific Knowledge in the Habsburg Empire, 1848-1918. Palgrave Macmillan

This volume challenges the common belief that scientific knowledge is international. Employing case studies from Austria, Poland, the Czech lands, and Hungary, the authors show how scientists in the late Habsburg Monarchy confronted the problem of simultaneously nationalizing and internationalizing their knowledge in a multi-national empire during the 'age of nationalism'. The case studies go beyond traditional emphasis on history, ethnology or other 'national' disciplines, ranging from chemistry and physics to natural history, geology, seismology, surgery, linguistics and eugenics, focusing inter alia on scientific terminology in various national languages, supra-national networks of observation or data gathering, language issues in science education, and research practices in cross-national comparison.

 Christian J. Disproof of Bell's Theorem: Illuminating the Illusion of Entanglement. Brown Walker Press
 A remarkable concept known as "entanglement" in quantum physics requires an incredibly bizarre link between subatomic particles. When one such particle is observed, quantum entanglement demands the rest of them to be affected instantaneously, even if they are universes apart. Einstein called this "spooky actions at a distance", and argued that such bizarre predictions of quantum theory show that it is an incomplete theory of nature. In 1964, however, John Bell proposed a theorem which seemed to prove that such spooky actions at a distance are inevitable for any physical theory, not just quantum theory. Since then many experiments have confirmed these long-distance correlations. But now, in this groundbreaking collection of papers, the author exposes a fatal flaw in the logic and mathematics of Bell's theorem, thus undermining its main conclusion, and proves that---as suspected by Einstein all along---there are no spooky actions at a distance in nature. The observed long-distance correlations among subatomic particles are dictated by a garden-variety "common cause", encoded within the topological structure of our ordinary physical space itself.

 Russell R.J. Time in Eternity: Pannenberg, Physics, and Eschatology in Creative Mutual Interaction. University of Notre Dame Press

According to Robert John Russell, one of the foremost scholars on relating Christian theology and science, the topic of "time and eternity" is central to the relation between God and the world in two ways. First, it involves the notion of the divine eternity as the supratemporal source of creaturely time. Second, it involves the eternity of the eschatological New Creation beginning with the bodily Resurrection of Jesus in relation to creaturely time. The key to Russell's engagement with these issues, and the purpose of this book, is to explore Wolfhart Pannenberg's treatment of time and eternity in relation to mathematics, physics, and cosmology.

 Bracken J.A. Does God Roll Dice? Divine Providence for a World in the Making. Liturgical Press
 Albert Einstein is often quoted as saying that God does not play dice, claiming an orderly and predictable structure to the universe. Today, advances and presumptions in the field of quantum mechanics pose a serious challenge to such a position. It's a challenge not only for nuclear physicists, but also for Christian theologians who work to explain God's providence for the world. In Does God Roll Dice? noted Jesuit scholar Joseph Bracken claims that something like directed chance (Teilhard de Chardin) is God's normal mode of operation in a world always perilously poised between order and chaos. Bracken adopts the relatively new concept of self-organizing or self-correcting systems out of the natural and social sciences to deal with controversial issues in the ongoing religion and science debate. At the same time he deliberately keeps the language and context of the book suitable for the intelligent non-professional reader

LAPORAN WACANA KRITIKAN TEORI EINSTEIN DAN TEORI QUANTUM

Oleh : Wan Qashishah Akmal Binti Wan Razali

Pelajar Tahun 2,

Jabatan Fizik Gunaan,

USIM.

Pada 11 MAC 2012, Sabtu, sejumlah 18 siswa/i Pengkhususan Fizik Gunaan Universiti Sains Islam Malaysia (USIM) telah menghadiri Wacana Kritikan Teori Einstein & Teori Quantum di PPAS, Shah Alam. Wacana ini telah dianjurkan oleh Perpustakaan Raja Tun Uda Shah Alam Selangor dan Persatuan Seniman Paksi Rakyat. Kumpulan kami diketuai saudara Mohd Hasif Bin Johan. Wacana ini turut dihadiri lebih kurang 30 peserta dari pelbagai lapisan masyarakat dan pelbagai bidang.

Wacana ini bermula pada awal pagi dan berakhir pada waktu tengahari. Slot wacana ini dimulakan dengan perbentangan oleh Dr. Shaharir dan diiringi komentar-komentar oleh beberapa tokoh seperti Dr. Zainal bin Abdul Aziz (UTM), Ustaz Mohd Zaidi Abdullah (Pondok) dan Dr. Mohammad Alinor bin Abdul Kadir (ASASI). Pencerahan dan diskusi akademik yang telah disajikan memberi manfaat dan kefahaman secara langsung kepada peserta-peserta tentang kepentingan peng-Islam-an ilmu Sains dan Teknologi.

Tujuan Pengkhususan Fizik Gunaan USIM menghadiri wacana ini adalah untuk mendapatkan pencerahan dan gambaran sebenar tentang teori fizik moden (teori quantum dan teori Einstein). "Indah khabar daripada rupa", inilah pepatah yang sesuai diberikan kepada tokoh barat yang disanjung-sanjung oleh dunia, iaitu Albert Einstein. Beliau bukan sahaja telah memanipulasi sarjana-sarjana, bahkan seluruh dunia. Oleh itu, wacana ini sedikit sebanyak telah membuka mata saya untuk berfikir secara kritis dan rasional demi kepentingan ummah ini.

Wacana ini juga memberi impak yang besar pada pekspektif dan pemikiran saya tentang ilmu sekarang, iaitu ilmu Barat yang sekular. Benarlah, sesungguhnya hikmah-hikmah atau ilmu-ilmu itu adalah milik orang Islam. Namun, berlainan pula apa yang berlaku hari ini, sarjana-sarjana muslim sendiri seolah-olah mengagung-agungkan falsafah-falsafah dan ilmuwan-ilmuwan Barat. Sungguh hebat manifestasi Barat untuk menjatuhkan umat Islam bukan sahaja melalui ideologi-ideologi seperti pluralisme, nasionalisme, sekularisme dan pelbagai isme lagi bahkan melalui ilmu yang dipelajari.

Selaku pelajar pengkhususan fizik, saya turut berasa kurang senang dengan ilmu yang dipelajari sepanjang tempoh perkuliahan fizik klasik sekalipun seperti teori Maxwell, dan teori Laplace, bahkan unsure matematiknya seperti teori kebarangkalian dan lain-lain lagi. Namun, saya juga sedar ilmu-ilmu ini bukanlah tidak benar seratus-peratus tetapi harus diubah dan diislamkan kerana sarjana-sarjana Barat juga mengambil hikmah ini daripada umat Islam. Saya juga amat meminati Falsafah dan Peradaban lantaran hasil didikan seorang ustaz tentang ilmu Tasawwuf. Saya yakin ilmu adab atau ilmu Tasawwuf ini sangat berkait rapat dengan ilmu fizik dan metafizik serta mampu mengubah pemikiran manusia hari ini. Ilmu inilah juga cuba dihapuskan oleh Barat.

Saya berasa sangat berbesar hati dan bersyukur apabila bertemu tokoh-tokoh seperti Dr. Shaharir, Dr. Alinor, Dr Zainal dan Ustaz Zaidi. Saya juga sangat bersyukur kerana masih ada tokoh-tokoh yang ingin menyelamatkan pemikiran, falsafah-falsafah dan ilmu-ilmu umat islam pada zaman pasca moden ini. Tergambar kejujuran dan keikhlasan pada raut wajah mereka untuk melihat generasi-generasi hari ini berubah. Seringkali saya tertanya-tanya bilakah umat Islam akan bangkit. Namun, saya yakin generasi-generasi inilah yang akan membangkitkan Islam sebagaimana yang dijanjikan oleh firman Allah.

Rentetan daripada itu, saya merasakan tugas dan peranan saya semakin besar untuk menyedarkan sahabat-sahabat saya tentang kepentingan pengislaman ilmu Sains dan Teknologi serta menjadikan Islam sebagai agama syumul dan mengambil Islam secara menyeluruh.

Saya berharap wacana ini terus diadakan di merata-rata tempat seperti universiti-universiti, kolej-kolej dan institusi-institusi lain untuk menyedarkan generasi pada hari ini. Saya teringat kata-kata Syeikh Hasan Al-Banna : "Andai diumpamakan Islam itu sebuah bangunan usang yang hampir roboh, maka aku akan berjalan ke seluruh pelosok dunia bagi mencari jiwa-jiwa muda. Aku tidak ingin mengutip dengan ramainya bilangan mereka tetapi aku inginkan hati yang ikhlas untuk membantuku dan bersama membina kembali bangunan usang itu dan menjadi sebuah bangunan yang tersergam indah". Indah sungguh kata-kata ini. Dalam waktu yang sama, saya juga berharap agar sentiasa mendapat bimbingan dan tunjuk ajar daripada Dr Shaharir dan Dr Alinor. Kami hanya generasi setahun jagung sedangkan tuan-tuan telah lama merasai asam-garam kehidupan ini.

REPORT: AYAT-VISION PROGRAMME, 30th December, 2012

M.Z. Kirmani
Aligarh Univ., Hindia

A symposium on the theme "Emerging Issues in Knowledge: Quran-Science Context" held under the banner of Ayat-Vision Prgramme on 30th December, 2012, was organized by "Centre for Studies on Science" Aligarh, the publisher of the Urdu biannual "AYAT" since 1990. It was presided over by Prof. Nijatullah Siddiqui, eminent economist and thinker. Reappearance of the magazine after a gap of five years under new vision and format provided the fitting pretext for the above symposium. Earlier issues comprised translations of Arabic or English language articles on Scientific and civilizational contribution of Islamic scholars of the past. Under the new vision, this magazine, is to be comprehensive as the term Ayat indicates and to include original articles on all such events and phenomena which the Quran describes under this expression.

Seven topics were announced for debate which included; crisis of knowledge; objectives of knowledge; crisis in science; value and knowledge integration; classification of knowledge versus holism, science as study of inter-relation and the holy Quran, and significance of the Quranic concept of Ayah in reconstruction of new education system. However, presentation could be made only on three topics. A brief report is given here under:

Opening the debate M. Zaki Kirmani Chairman of CSOS emphasized the increasingly realized inter-relations among various disciplines of knowledge including science and non-science. This, according to him correlates well with science's new definition as study of relations among things and phenomenon. Giving examples from Western scholarly writings he pointed out to the impact of this realization in term of inter-dependency of knowledge disciplines. That this is of little cognitive significance is perhaps because of the western approach which is still controlled by out-dated Chartism- Newtonian view of universe, he said.

Dr. Abdul Mateen man of English Literature at AMU Aligarh said that now subjectivity is picking up and good old days when objectivity was the sole criterion of knowledge is not going to stage a come back. In social science the idea of objectivity was considered as transplantation even earlier, but now even science is recognizing the significance of subjectivity. This statement of Dr. Mateen was contested by Mr. Muqim of the Deptt. Of Philosophy, AMU, Aligarh who said that without objectivity, growth of knowledge is not possible.

Prof. M. Ahmadullah Siddiqui from U. S. A. spoke on the significance of liberal Arts in the scenario of the present discussion and communicated through skype. He emphasized in his paper that all truth is God's truth and we should not ignore or deprecate an ally, a part of God's wholeness or revelation.

Dr. M. Rafat a physicist from Jamia Millia Islamia Delhi speaking on values and knowledge said that values are basically for application of knowledge and while producing it they seem to have no role. In case of science, values cannot pre-decide what to produce and what not to produce. Infact it is a world view which determines knowledge use, he said.

Prof. Masood Ahmad a bio-chemist of AMU, Aligarh said that as man's intervention in Nature has created problems therefore it is essential to have better understanding of Man-Nature relation. Referring to Quranic Ayat he elaborated on the basics of the nature of man's relation with Nature.

Dr. M. Riaz Kirmani followed him and proposed his contemporary classification of knowledge which according to him could improve upon some problems which modern knowledge has produced. He initiated by introducing the classification, which the Islamic thinkers did during earlier times.

On the presentations general comments were made by Prof. Abdul Kalam Qasmi and Dr. Rashid Shaz. Dr. Shaz said that limiting knowledge (science) to five senses has turned out to be dangerous but equally dangerous are individualistic mystic means which serve to create spiritualistic authoritarianism and shun individual's creativity. Prof. Abul Kalam Qasim, a critic of Urdu literature, suggested that gradual loss of spirituality has created problems in human activity, intellectual or physical. Its re-introduction at some level may remedy the problems being discussed here and also shore-up the clientele because of its universal appeal.

Finally Prof. M. Nejatullah Siddiqui who was presiding the programme expressed his opinion and pointed out that in man's intellectual exercises, element of subjectivity is inevitable. It cannot be totally shunned. He also said that narratives based on individual's extra-sensory experiences, should not and cannot be denied, as they are abundant in almost every community.

Prof. M. Mubarak from J. N. Medical College, Aligarh appreciating the classification of knowledge debate pointed out to the need of a contemporary attempt for classification. He thanked the participants.

Changes to Iran's Family Protection Act

MORITA Toyoko (Part-time Lecturer, Kagoshima Univ.)

Commentator: YANAGIHASHI Hiroyuki (Prof., University of Tokyo Graduate School of Humanities and Sociology)

Overview:

In the wake of the 1979 revolution, Iran became an Islamic republic. Then, Iran's Family Protection Act, which adopted western standards and brought sweeping changes to Iranian law, especially women's rights, when it was introduced in 1961 as part of "modernization", was suspended. This Family Protection Act deeply affected women's rights to make decisions about marriage and divorce. After the revolution and suspension of these laws, legal issues regarding marriage and divorce were decided according to a variety of civil and other laws, creating confusion from a legal standpoint. To improve situation like these, a new Family Protection Act bill was introduced and debated in the Iranian parliament in 2007. Through the work of the "Green movement", the popular uprising that cast doubt on the re-election of President Ahmadinejad in 2009, the bill was passed in parliament in 2012 and is currently being considered by the Guardian Council of the Constitution.

Presenter MORITA began by explaining about women's movements and "modernization" in the Qajar dynasty era. She then explained about historic systemic changes to women's rights under the Pahlavi dynasty, including the establishment of marriage laws and civil codes, the rise of women's movements, and the establishment of the Family Protection Act. She then explained the major points about the post-revolution suspension of that Act and the debate surrounding the new version from 2007, and then gave specific examples of articles from the current bill. She also spoke about societal reactions to the bill and its relation to current women's movements, bringing to an end her presentation on a topic that has few opportunities for exploration in Japan.

Commentator YANAGIHASHI made a variety of insightful comments. He compared Iran's laws with those of other regions and Arab countries, citing similar points of contention on polygamy, women's rights to sue for divorce, the age of consent for marriage, and parental authority. The Q&A session brought insightful comments and suggestions on points such as the social contexts for changes in the Family Protection Act, the ideological basis for the Family Protection Act and its connections to older traditional laws, and that this presentation's standing was a little unclear in terms of gender studies.

The valuable contributions made by Presenter MORITA, Commentator YANAGIHASHI, and the attendees were acknowledged, as was this first seminar's progress in collaborative research. It was then brought to a close.

Islamic creationism: London debate on Islam and evolution cancelled because of Muslim student opposition

In my studies of on how people try (and fail) to accommodate science and religion, I've tried to investigate faiths other than Christianity (the main religion concerned with such reconciliation) and Judaism. But with Islam it's a dismal failure, for there aren't many decent books dealing with the topic (for one, see Tanir Edis's An Illusion of Harmony: Science and Religion in Islam. Prometheus Books, Amherst, NY). But even Edis's book is mostly about Turkey, and doesn't go into the depths (if that's the word) attained by Christian theologians like John Polkinghorne or Alvin Plantinga.

Most Islamic "accommodationism" simply reports that everything we know about science is already in the Qur'an, so there's no contradiction. One example, and it's typical, comes from a book by H. T. M. B. Nurbaki, Verses from the Holy Qur'an and the Facts of Science. (2007, Kitabkhvan, New Delhi, India).

If you want to see how far this ludicrous scientific exegesis of the Qur'an goes, here's an example, in which Nurbaki shows that the secrets of OXYGEN were revealed to Muhammed. On p. 133, Nurbaki explicates this Qur'anic verse: "The fire you kindle arises from green trees" as a divine revelation of the oxygen molecule, arguing "It was impossible 14 centuries ago for unbelievers to understand the stupendous biological secret this verse contains, for the inside story of combustion was not known." There are books full of this nonsense, and it almost makes you laugh.

But in none of these books have I seen a reconciliation between Islam and evolution, for that's simply out. The Qur'an tells us we created by Allah in a manner similar to the description of Genesis. But that's not interpreted metaphorically; nearly all devout Muslims reject evolution.

Thus it's no surprise that, as Friday's Telegraph reports, a Muslim think tank, the Deen Institute, has had to cancel a planned conference on Islam and evolution because of Muslim student opposition. (notice of the upcoming conference here; no words about its having been cancelled or rescheduled). The Deen Institute, which operates in both the UK and the US, seems to be a sort of BioLogos for Islam: an organization dedicated to comporting the Muslim faith with the facts of science. And, according to the Telegraph, it's succeeding about as well:

The Deen Institute, a Muslim debating forum which promotes critical thinking, had hoped to hold a conference entitled "Have Muslims misunderstood evolution?" early next year. Among the speakers invited to attend included Muslim scientists, imams who have promoted the compatibility of Islam and evolution as well as those who preach a form of Islamic creationism.

The initial plan was to hold the event next month at Imperial College London, one of the country's foremost universities for scientific exploration and debate, in cooperation with the local Islamic student society. But the Deen Institute said it was forced to pull out when it became clear that opposition to the event from supporters of creationism began mounting. It is now being held without input from any Muslim student society at Logan Hall, a conference centre owned by the University of London.

"We eventually had to give up of getting any support from student societies because it was seen as simply too controversial," Adam Deen, co-founder of the institute, told The Independent. Deen, who describes himself as a "conservative Muslim" who encourages critical thinking, said he was surprised to receive such opposition at a place of scientific study, particularly as he had made sure to invite all sides of the debate including those who preach creationism.

"It's symptomatic of a bigger problem in the Muslim world where people representing practical Muslims have to be seen to be more literalist," he said. "It's almost like there's an intellectual mafia movement who won't allow any freedom of thought."

And that's a surprise? While several students expressed support for the conference, they couldn't overcome the baying ignoramuses. But knowing Islamic "accommodationism," I wasn't surprised:

The row is informative because it illustrates some of the controversies currently occupying the Muslim world about the compatibility of science and whether critical thinking is being closed down by more literalist schools of thought. Muslims believe the Qur'an is the indisputable word of God and therefore any scientific discovery which risks proving something within their holy book as incorrect is highly controversial, particularly among the more literalist schools of thought. For example, most Muslim scholars have long accepted scientifically proven cosmology but even up until his death in 1999, Sheikh Ibn Baaz, the Grand Mufti of Saudi Arabia, continued to insist that the Sun revolved around the Earth based on his interpretation of Islamic texts.

Naturally, the debate will prominently feature Islamic creationists, including minions of the infamous Harun Yahya (Adnan Oktar):

Much of this newfound enthusiasm for attacking evolution has been pushed by Harun Yahya, a prominent Turkish theologian whose writings have been seized upon by literalists and those who exhibit a theological suspicion of science. Dr Oktar Babuna, a representative from the Harun Yahya movement, is scheduled to speak at the conference alongside Shaikh Yasir Qadhi, an influential imam who accepts evolution at a micro level but refuses to countenance the idea that man evolved from anything other than Adam himself.

Two Muslim scientists, American biologists Ehab Abouheif and Fatimah Jackson, will also speak alongside Usama Hasan, a British imam who preaches the commonly held scientific view that man is descended from ape-like forebears.

You may remember Hasan as I've posted on him before; a while back he was scheduled to give a talk on Islam and evolution in London, but then bailed because of death threats from his coreligionists. I have no problem with his withdrawal; I might cancel a talk too if I got credible threats. But Hasan subsequently retracted some of his views on evolution; not surprisingly, his “apology” was rejected by fellow Muslims. It will be interesting to see what he says in his rescheduled talk.

A word on the mission of the Deen Institute, which again reminds me of BioLogos; its “vision” is shown below:

As Muslims living in modern society, we must engage with a diverse range of ideas and belief systems. The Deen Institute has been established to provide students with the necessary tools of understanding and dialogue. Our aim is to navigate this challenging situation in light of the Islamic tradition; through our commitment to knowledge and learning. Taught in a comfortable and welcoming environment, our structured courses cover a range of subjects and levels.

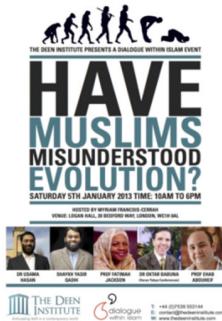

The Deen Institute welcomes all who are curious and eager to learn, regardless of faith or background.

With this in mind, the Institute’s primary objectives as represented by each pillar are as follows:

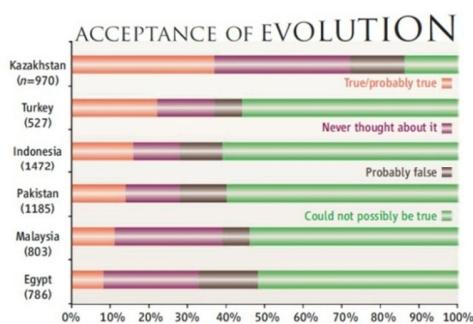

- I To help the wider public understand the Islamic tradition in light of contemporary ideas and beliefs.
- II To raise awareness about the sound use of critical thinking and intellectual thought throughout Islamic heritage, and to share this wisdom with modern day thinkers and intellectuals.
- III To supply the UK with a platform where common issues and questions can be openly examined from various viewpoints, with mutual respect and civility.
- IV To release research publications focused on the Islamic perspective on common issues pertaining to topics such as ethics, philosophy, history and science.
- V To promote critical thinking and rational thought within philosophical cogency in the educational sector and to revive intellectuality within the Muslim community.

These are doomed, of course, so long as Muslims take the Qur'an as the ultimate truth and authority on everything. As far as I know, Muslims are far more literalistic about their scriptures than Christians, even American Christians, so “promoting rational thought” within Islam could never mean questioning the Qur'an.

To show this, just have a look at the logo for the evolution meeting below. The “progression of humans” shown at the top, their take on a classic evolution graphic, would make me chuckle—except I don’t think it’s a joke.

Finally, a graphic from a paper in Science (reference below: pdf available free, I think), showing how abysmal the statistics are for acceptance of evolution in Islamic countries:

MAKALAH PILIHAN

A rebirth of science in Islamic countries?

January 2011 / Andrew Plume

The Islamic Golden Age — a period that spanned the 7th to the 13th centuries A.D. — saw a flourishing of scholarship in the Umayyad and Abbasid Caliphates, which at their greatest extent stretched across North Africa and the Middle East. Contrary to traditional views of Islamic science in this era as a mere preserver of ancient knowledge from Greek and Roman sources, the Golden Age is now understood by scholars to have laid the foundations of modern science hundreds of years before the Scientific Revolution that began in Europe in the 16th century. The Islamic Golden Age produced important empirical discoveries in optics, astronomy, chemistry, mathematics (including the invention of algebra) and medicine — and Muslim doctors even invented a form of medical peer review, in which visiting physicians filed their patient case notes with a panel of local doctors, who then reviewed the standard of care.

Shifting sands: Reawakening a scholarly tradition

The Golden Age eventually ended as a result of instability brought about by the Crusades from the West and Mongol invasions from the East. After centuries in the doldrums, is it now possible that a new wind has begun to blow in favor of “Islamic science” (that is, scientific research originating from the “Islamic world”; see below)?

The map of the Islamic world has shifted since the days of the Caliphs. Since 1969, the Organization of the Islamic Conference (OIC) has represented the interests of self-identifying Muslim nations of the world. Membership currently stands at 57 countries, and for the purposes of this article these will be considered as defining the modern Islamic world.

In the Golden Age, Baghdad was the political capital and seat of learning of the Abbasid Caliphate. At its intellectual heart was the “House of Wisdom”. This library and translation institute was destroyed in the Mongol sacking of Baghdad in 1238, during which priceless manuscripts were thrown into the River Tigris in such quantities that the waters were said to have run black with the ink from their pages.

Today, Baghdad remains the center of scientific production in Iraq, with the University of Baghdad accounting for almost 20% of the 1,281 articles produced in Iraq in the period 2004–08. However, today’s premier knowledge-producing institute across all OIC countries is the University of Tehran in Iran, with well over 1,500 articles published in the journal literature covered in Scopus. Although only inaugurated in 1934, the University of Tehran draws on a tradition of higher education stretching back over many centuries.

Iranian science in focus

Of all of the OIC countries, Iran best exemplifies the renewed spirit of scientific enquiry (as previously featured in Research Trends in December 2009). Indeed, measures of both input and output into the research system are showing very positive trends: Gross Expenditure on Research and Development (GERD) rose from 0.55% to 0.67% of Gross Domestic Product (GDP) between 2001 and 2006, ranking it among the strongest performers in the OIC on this statistic in recent years (see Table 1).

Country	Year	GERD as a percentage of GDP
Tunisia	2005	1.02
Turkey	2007	0.72
Pakistan	2007	0.67
Iran	2006	0.67
Morocco	2006	0.64
Malaysia	2006	0.64
Mozambique	2006	0.53
Uganda	2007	0.39
Sudan	2005	0.29
Kyrgyzstan	2007	0.23
Egypt	2007	0.23
Kazakhstan	2008	0.22
Azerbaijan	2007	0.17
Burkina Faso	2007	0.11
Senegal	2005	0.09
Kuwait	2007	0.09
Algeria	2005	0.07
Tajikistan	2007	0.06
Indonesia	2005	0.05
Saudi Arabia	2007	0.05

In terms of output, Iran has progressed from a low base of publications in the international journal literature of just 5,034 in 1996 to 20,244 in 2008. This 18-fold relative increase outstrips that of any other country in the OIC (see Figure 1). Moreover, Iran has matched this increase in output with an increase in field-weighted citation impact over the same period, as have several other OIC member states (see Figure 2).

Collaboration between Islamic countries

In 2010, The Royal Society published a landmark report entitled “A new golden age? The prospects for science and innovation in the Islamic world”. Drawing on the Society’s extensive network of Fellows and partners worldwide, this report provides an evidence-based exploration of the current status of research in OIC states (also including publication and citation data from Scopus). It concludes that “[T]here is much to suggest that a new renaissance of Islamic world science could be occurring. And there are also many challenges. If the Islamic world is to again prosper and flourish, far greater investment — in people, cultural attitudes as well as in physical and intellectual infrastructure — must be encouraged. It must also be underpinned by greater international outreach and collaboration.”

On the issue of outreach and collaboration, there is evidence that the OIC is starting from a reasonable base of collaborative publication among member states in the journal literature, as Figure 3 shows. In the figure, lines join countries with collaborative ties, and the thickness of the lines reflect the proportion of a nation’s total output that is produced in partnership with the other country. Lines that run clockwise out of a country are indicative of the proportion of that country’s total output that is produced in partnership with the target country. For example, Turkey and Azerbaijan share a strong collaborative relationship as indicated by their proximity on the map, but this connection is relatively stronger for Azerbaijan (with a thick line running clockwise from Azerbaijan to Turkey) than for Turkey (with a thin line running clockwise from Turkey to Azerbaijan), since Turkey also collaborates with several other counties on the map).

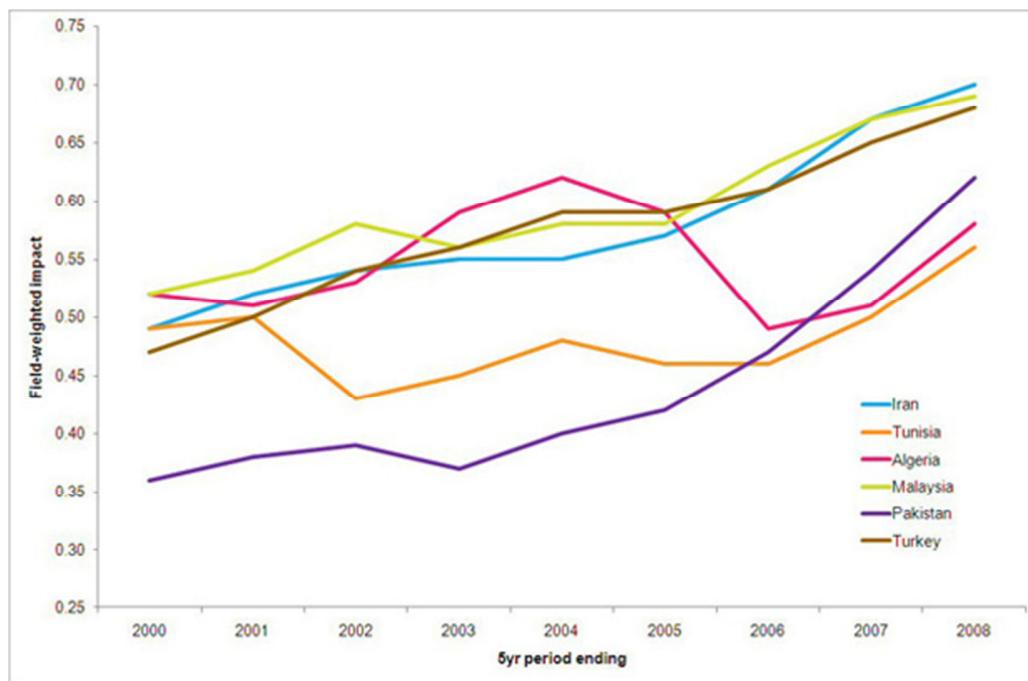

Figure 2 — Field-weighted impact for selected OIC countries calculated on five-year periods ending in the years shown (that is, 2008 represents publications and citations in the period 2004–08 inclusive). Field-weighted impact accounts for differing citation practices between different fields of research and the relative spread of a country's activity in these fields, and is relativized to a world aggregate of 1.00. Source: Scopus.

This network analysis reveals hubs of collaboration, such as Egypt, and less connected outliers, such as Iran and the Kazakhstan–Uzbekistan pairing. Broadly speaking, the OIC nations collaborate along geopolitical lines, but the map throws up some interesting connections. For instance, the linkage between Pakistan and Cameroon, which forms a bridge between the African OIC members and the rest of the map, consists of just 45 papers published in the period 2004–08, 34 of which were written by Professor Muhammad Iqbal Choudhary at the University of Karachi and various co-authors at the University of Yaoundé I (principally on medicinal/natural products chemistry of indigenous West African plants). This example highlights an important point: scientific collaboration is frequently driven by the efforts and personalities of individual researchers, and not by governmental or international scientific organizations.

Dame Louise Johnson FRS, University of Oxford and Chair of the Royal Society's Advisory Group on the Atlas of Islamic World Science and Innovation comments: “There are a number of developments taking place across the Islamic world that reinforce the potential for an expansion in the capabilities for science and innovation. The identification and characterisation of natural products with beneficial properties for medicine and industry is one such area. Working with partners from across the Islamic world, the Atlas of Islamic World Science and Innovation seeks to provide a robust analysis of the potential opportunities and challenges facing science across the Islamic world. This project will also explore and promote new opportunities for partnership and exchange, ideals that were key to the flourishing of science in the first ‘golden age’.”

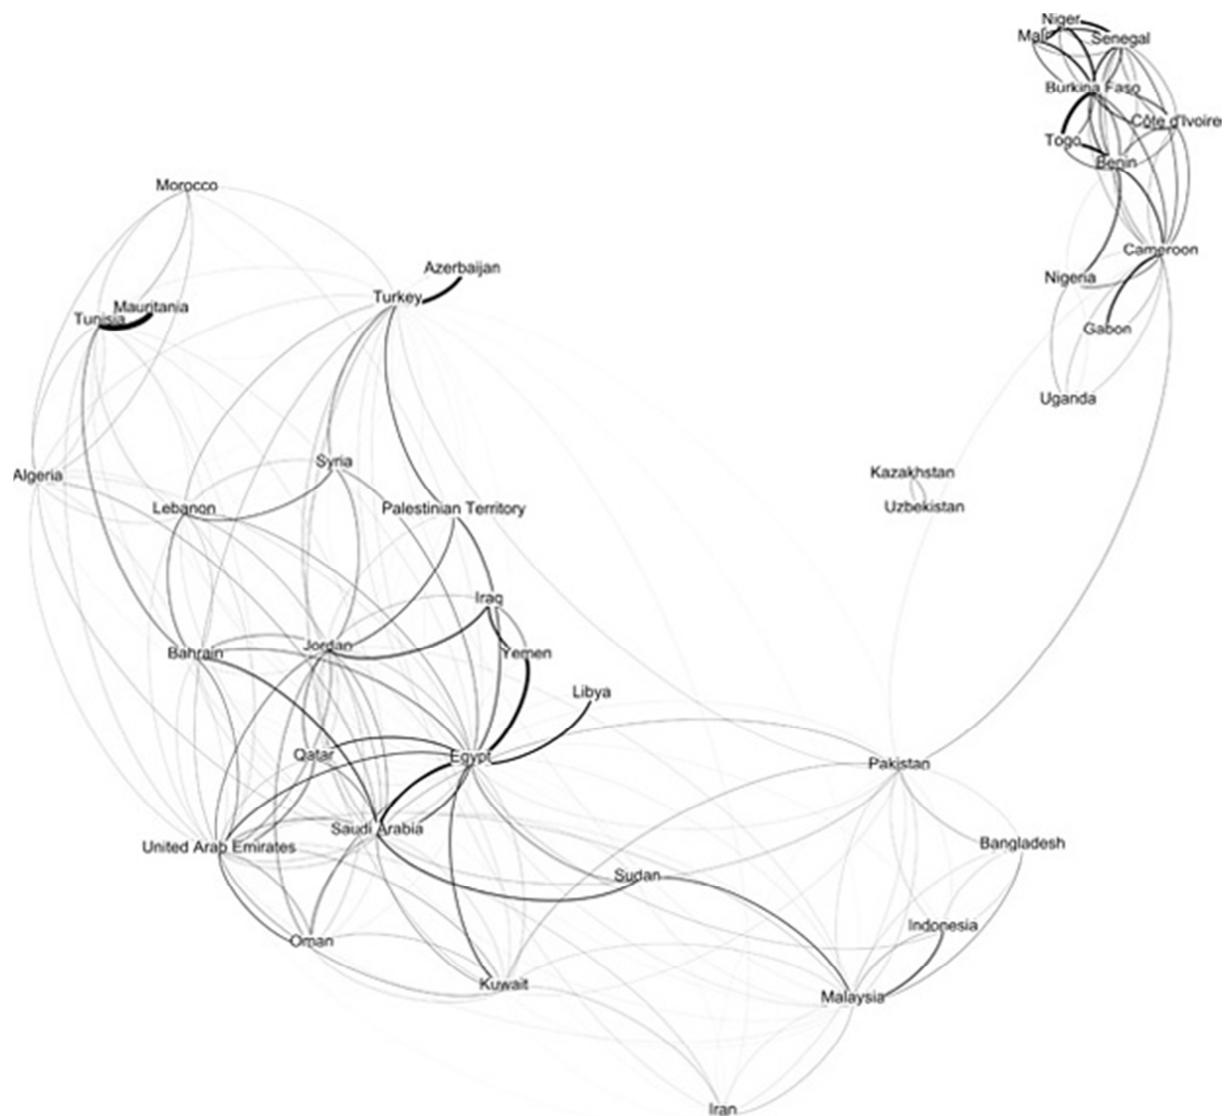

Figure 3 — Collaboration map of selected OIC countries in the period 2004–08 inclusive. Collaborative patterns between countries are represented based on numbers of jointly authored research papers (with a threshold of 25 papers). The data were visualized in Gephi using the Force Atlas algorithm, which treats the network of lines as a system of interconnected springs and seeks to satisfy the tension of all lines simultaneously in a 2-D rendering; as such, countries sharing a collaborative relationship tend to group together, while those that do not are placed further apart.
